

The STATT Course

(Self, Teams, and Team of Teams)

At Take Point Training, we know the challenge of building and maintaining high performance teams in high-pressure environments.

Our training facilitators come from all sectors and specialisations in the military, and have operated in hostile environments around the globe.

Since the beginning of the Covid-19 pandemic, we've partnered with NHS Trusts across the UK to bring our unique experiences and skillsets to healthcare professionals.

By sharing our knowledge of leadership, communication and collaboration, especially in times of crisis, we're helping NHS teams work cohesively and efficiently while helping to create a culture that feels inclusive for all.

Our results show that by working together, we help to equip people with a wide range of in-demand skills to support colleagues and drive lasting behaviour change, and ultimately, enhance patient care.

Genuinely, one of the best and engaging courses I've done in 25 years of nursing.

Jason Senior Charge Nurse

The STATT Course We offer healthcare professionals an innovative style of leadership and team development. Built around 3 proven principles, the course develops the behaviours your people need to deliver exceptional results. Our flagship course is comprised of three one-day modules focusing on Self, Teams and Team of Teams.

TAKE POIN

Transformational training for everyone

The STATT Course is perfect for clinical and non-clinical healthcare staff in every department.

From nurses, midwifes and matrons to managers, physiotherapists and dieticians, our innovative course gives everyone access to professional and personal development.

Delivered off-site in a safe and time-protected environment, the STATT Course provides transformational learning for every participant – and everything they need to become inspirational leaders fostering high performing teams.

We'll make sure you and your people will benefit from our proven approach in a way that delivers lasting change and extraordinary results.

Experiential learning

We know that effective training requires a more collaborative style, rather than a oneway information flow.

That's why we blend light-touch theory with practical 'hands-on' experiential learning – or learning by doing – with a range of tasks to assess and develop individual and team behaviours.

Experiential learning promotes teamwork, problem-solving and effective communication - all essential skills for healthcare professionals. During the programme participants are encouraged to share their experiences and work together to find solutions to complex problems.

- Day One (Self) focuses on developing an enhanced awareness of ourselves while examining our habitual patterns of thoughts and feelings and how they shape our behaviour.
- Day Two (Teams) examines the vital elements of a high performing team including effective briefing, de-briefing, challenging conversations and psychological safety.
- Day Three (Team of Teams)
 considers scaling the agility of a small team to the wider organisation. We examine collaborative and cross-team working,
 sharing of resources and information
 between teams in pursuit of a common goal.

Our extraordinary results show that we deliver lasting change for healthcare professionals throughout the NHS and beyond.

NOT A BOOTCAMP

At Take Point Training we don't do bootcamps. The STATT Course is an immersive learning experience designed to enhance leadership and team performance: we do not shout orders, do press-ups or other physical exercises!

Our interactive training solutions take place in a friendly, safe and supportive environment and delivered by facilitators not only chosen for their leadership and team development abilities, but for their warm, compassionate and positive approach.

Our learning methodology focuses on:

- Self-awareness
- Emotional Intelligence
- Communication
- Experiential learning
- Human behaviours
- Psychometrics

Our emphasis is on experiential and interactive learning methods to engage participants and make training enjoyable and more effective. I was at breaking point ... and in one day you turned this around. Becky A&E Senior Sister, NHS

5 great reasons to enrol on The STATT Course

I. Delivered by experts in building high performing teams

Our training facilitators have a wealth of experience leading high-performing teams in high-pressure environments coupled with a deep knowledge of the challenges faced by healthcare professionals.

2. A deep understanding of the pressures facing healthcare professionals

The military and the NHS share many similarities, including the need for teamwork, clear communication and the ability to adapt quickly to changing situations. We share our extensive experience working in high-pressure environments where leadership and teamwork are critical.

3. Experiential learning methods

Effective leaders and high performing teams are not created by applying textbook theories. That's why we use experiential learning – learning by doing – to build emotional intelligence and maximise leadership and team potential. By engaging delegates in hands-on experiences and self-reflection, they are better able to connect theories and knowledge learned to real-world situations.

4. Protected learning time

Our 3-day course is delivered within a safe and time-protected learning environment. We know that healthcare professionals can experience high levels of stress and burnout due to the demands of their roles, so we give delegates time and space to reflect on how they work, learn new strategies and improve wellbeing.

5. Exceptional results

Ultimately, our STATT course has a track record of delivering results. From working with nurses, physiotherapists, midwifes and managers, to matrons, dieticians and doctors our transformational programme continues to exceed expectations.

Excellent,
really engaging style, which involves everyone
and ensured everyone
achieved the best
from the course.

Director of Patient Services

Who are Take Point Training?

Meet Squadron Leader (Rtd) Shaun Pascoe.

During his 16-year career in the Royal Air Force (RAF), Shaun led a Medical Emergency Response Team (MERT) which treated injured troops while they were being transported by helicopter back to military bases. He served on operational tours in Kosovo, Sierra Leone, Iraq and Afghanistan.

Emerging from the military with a clear understanding of effective leadership and teamwork, Shaun launched Take Point Training - along with a team of highly trained ex-forces veterans - all experienced in building and leading high performance teams.

We bring a unique perspective to healthcare, having faced similar challenges in our own careers, such as working in challenging environments and adapting to changing circumstances.

Each of our training facilitators are passionate and dedicated to helping people fulfil their potential and as committed to the Take Point Training vision, just as founder Shaun Pascoe was right at the beginning.

Today our mission is to unlock the power of your people.

Excellent facilitators, approachable, great sense of humour and empathy with the issues we face.

Emma, Matron

I learnt a lot about my leadership style and techniques on how to better manage teams, but more importantly how to manage my stress on the ward.

Charlotte,
Junior Sister

I really needed. The team are fantastic, very compassionate about what they are doing and what they are delivering. It comes from bottom of their heart. I truly enjoyed it and was sad when it ended.

This is the best and most engaging course I have ever attended ... I strongly feel it helps to change attitudes and helps to provide practical solutions to help empower and value all staff to feel they can make changes in their workplace.

Ella,
Critical Care Staff Nurse

I feel confident and empowered to make changes to the way I work, and the way that I contribute and work with the team. I have learned lots about myself am more aware about myself as an individual, as part of a team and as a leader.

St Bartholomew's Hospital

This training had been personalised and made us feel more empowered and listened to. The interactive tasks have been well planned and fun but with a lasting message. Not death by Powerpoint.

Anush,

Physiotherapist

Fantastic course great bunch of people very informative and hands
on - you are challenged
to think and get involved.
I really loved it, and they all cared so much this was obvious throughout.

Emma,
Staff Nurse

Engaging and powerful course and exceeded all expectations. I am leaving feeling empowered to return to work, taking with me practical and achievable ideas to integrate impactful change into the workplace.
